

2020 Missouri State Fair

Mark Wolfe
Director

Thank you for exhibiting at the 2020 Missouri State Fair. Providing a platform for Missourians to showcase the best of the best is what the Fair is all about, and Missouri State Fair exhibitors certainly do an outstanding job of it. Since 1901, when the Fair debuted, showcasing excellence in agriculture has been at the core of the Fair's mission, and I'm proud to say that it is still strongly valued 118 Fairs later.

Agriculture is our state's number one industry (and second isn't even close!) and continues to be the foundation of your State Fair. Thank you to all the Missouri farmers and ranchers for their hard work each and every day to provide for us. We appreciate all you do and the sacrifices you make daily on behalf of those that depend on you.

This year's Fair theme is "Home is Here," and we hope that exhibitors consider the Fair a welcoming place where you look forward to spending time each summer. We know that coming to the Fair is an investment – of time, energy and money - each year, and we appreciate the passion you have for exhibiting here at the Fair. Family tradition is the number one reason our fairgoers come to the Fair, according to surveys. That's something the Fair staff, superintendents and Commission keep at the forefront of their minds as they plan activities, special events, competitions and more each year.

Whether your passion lies in the livestock barns, show rings or in a competitive exhibit building, we value your participation and thank you for showcasing at the State Fair. Special thank you to all those that support our youth exhibitors. Your encouragement of these young agriculturalists is invaluable and necessary to continue to strengthen our state's and our State Fair's agricultural heritage and progress.

"Home is Here" at the Missouri State Fair, and you are an important member of our Fair family.
